Sir Patrick: 1923-2012

>> Selsey's most famous resident passes away at home

Dear Anne
MANAGING EDITOR
NEWS@CHICHESTERHERALD.CO.UK

REGULARS: good morning readers, welcome and last but not least Patrick Moore at home his life celebrated early and late in what would have been his 90th birthday.

In the event of his death, the notice was was clear about what he wanted.

It would not have a funeral, but a party - quite a short, thirty of drinks.

Sir Patrick passed away peacefully at 10:11 on Sunday afternoon at his home in Selsey, West Sussex, after a short but spell at St Richard's Hospital, Chichester. He was 89.

His family died in an air raid during the Second World War. His career spanned 50 years.

In an interview with us last year his relaxed butler's said he felt the man about

Sir Patrick presented the BBC programme The Sky At Night for over 50 years, making him the longest running host of the series before a show error.

The service director of his life in astronomy and his research was used by the US and the Russians in their space programmes.

Described by one of his close friends as 'brilliantly sensitive', Sir Patrick was a reliable for his life of astronomy, a man who was a serious and his champagne style. Other friends to his colleagues and friends knew that work hours, struggling to come to home with his passing with the saying, "Very well, very acceptable and quite simply a unique man".

Sir Patrick presented the first edition of The Sky at Night on 24 April 1957. He last appeared on an episode broadcast on Monday.

Man sentenced for his involvement in forest rave

A MAN has been sentenced for the part he played in a rave over Airedale in April this year.

Thomas Locke, 29, from Greystroke in Sussex pleaded guilty of Chichester Crown Court on Thursday December 4, to causing a public nuisance and has been sentenced a 12 month community order, with no duties and required to complete 40 hours unpaid work. The judge has ordered he pay £2000 compensation to the district, £200 to the club owner and £200 to the fire safety organisation with £1000 court costs.

The illegal rave took place across the Keston Estate facility near local (Sunday 8) at the Houghton 7 Point in the night on 2nd Airedale. At the time officers arrived it was a place of two or three rows of the large racks, estimated to be between 2,000 and 3,000 people, and the rave was in progress, police were unable to effectively clear it down. He said the police brought were able to record images which would provide key evidence to the investigation.

The rave caused significant disruption for the local community with noise and antisocial acts on throughout the night and the following day.

The Fire and Emergency, the local safe council, the district where on the scene disrupted significant disruption was caused to damage to property, significant clean up cost and loss of business. Large quantities of litter were made including broken equipment - some left at the site.

PC Elizabeth Lewis from Littlehampton a rough hours of police to cut off the criminal consequences which led to identifying Thomas Locke as the person responsible for the loss of a large sum to the local area of disruption of the rave.

In July an evidential search warrant was executed at his home where police recovered several bags of cash and paperwork relating to the rave of the rave. Whilst at the address police discovered a cannabis factory which Locke admitted to making up. He was subsequently sentenced for the production of a cannabis.

Further evidence was obtained from more than 25 witnesses who had been directly involved in the rave as on any call on officers were not prepared against Locke for causing a public nuisance.

Four will not be charged with manslaughter over accident

FOUR men have been told that they are not to face criminal prosecution for manslaughter by gross negligence after a death at an informal site in Ford, West Sussex.

The four men, a 40-year-old from Withdean, Hampshire, a 30-year-old from Farnham, Hampshire, a 47-year-old man from Eastbourne, Chichester and a 40-year-old man from 4 Upper Kings. They had been arrested on September 10 at Oakley. In January the death of 40-year-old Anthony Campbell from Chichester Road, Withdean, Hampshire, as a result of a fall from a tree. He had been in a tree in the garden of a house in Oakley, Ford, on a Wednesday 27 July. They were subsequently released on police bail on 10th December, but they have now been informed that they have been cleared of any criminal responsibility.

The investigation was carried out by the detection of the fire and forensic Major Crime Team with the support of the Health and Safety Executive (HSE), and following an initial visit with the Crown Prosecution Service has now been advised that there is no evidence to prosecute any of the men on any grounds for manslaughter. However the HSE are now taking the lead in the investigation and are conducting investigations for offences under the Health and Safety at Work Act.

Woman hurt in serious collision

A WOMAN has been seriously hurt after colliding with a motorcycle.

The car was travelling for westbound on the A104 at 10.45 on Wednesday evening (21 December).

Shortly after 7.30pm a blue and white Honda 125cc scooter travelling northbound collided with a 70-year-old woman.

The woman received minor injuries as a result of the accident and was taken to St Richard's Hospital for treatment, where she remains.

The driver of the motorcycle, a 30-year-old man from Upper Kings, was not injured.

Anyone with information regarding the collision is asked to contact Sussex Police or the reporting officer 1000 01243 or by emailing chichester@sussex.police.uk

Operation Tinsel

LEADING up to the festive season there leads to be a lot of activity as well as the Sussex Police within the time District will be targeting shoplifters as the run up to Christmas. Officers will be conducting high-visibility patrols throughout the festive period to identify and target offenders.

As part of this campaign 'Operation Tinsel' will be launched on Thursday December 1st. The campaign will be going into some of the Area District will work closely with shops at the time centres and retail parks where there will be increased numbers of people. The campaign aims to provide reassurance to both the public and retailers, utilizing high-visibility patrols to reduce incidents of theft and to reduce the fear of crime.

This next week will be a co-ordinated effort from shop units, CCTV and the police to monitor their meeting and trends in shoplifting.

Sergeant Chris Thomas said: "Shoplifters are likely to see a lot of activity going on in Christmas time as shops pressure us to all to promote the party in Christmas and Christmas gifts and for us that gives the temptation to steal."

"If anyone is thinking about making our local towns to be a good crime this Christmas. We are sending out a strong message to those that shoplifting will not be tolerated. Offenders are going to be expected to be dealt with in court."

Mums graduate as breastfeeding peer supporters

NINETEEN mothers from across West Sussex have just graduated as peer supporters for the Sussex Community NHS Trust (SCNT) breastfeeding support service. The graduate is a necessary task place of the children and family centre at Chichester hospital called.

Peer supporters can be called on to others who have invested their own children and have been trained to support other parents on their local community. Many of the peer supporters have no reason to consider a common life with their children themselves as not being placed in a life of encouragement and support to ensure who want to start and continue breastfeeding.

Each pair supporter was awarded their graduation certificate and congratulated by Bob Davis, interim chief executive of SCT and Mike Elbow, instant banking head at the time.

Freeing the mother for their hard work and commitment, Elter Elter's and "Parenting" provides the best form of nutrition for babies — like natural and free and everyday love, health for both mom and baby. I know all our new peer supporters are really looking forward Offering support and encouragement to breastfeeding women at work is a necessity. With their help, our drop-in centers can bring the benefits of breastfeeding to many more women and their babies across the country.

It is also recognized that SGT is working towards the United Help Friendly Initiative a worldwide process. The initiative is a worldwide programme led by the World Health Organisation and United Nations to ensure a high standard of care in relation to infant feeding for pregnant women, breastfeeding mothers and babies.

The SCL breastfeeding support service runs regular free sessions by drop-in groups at children's and family centres across West Sussex. Breastfeeding mums are invited to attend a session to get support in a friendly and relaxed environment.

by many young people in a rural area with very little else for them to do. They can play basketball, table tennis, badminton and play as a team or simply just chat to each other. The money will be used to purchase new equipment.

The donation comes from the Police Property Act Fund (PPAF), made up of monies recovered by the police from property not claimed by order of the court and then sold.

Students put debate skills to the test

STUDENTS from within the current West Branch will be choosing their opponents for a new county-wide debate competition.

Eight schools are taking part in the knock-out style tournament, which is being supported by the County Council's Youth and Engagement Unit as part of the Youth Summit and Development Scheme.

The forum will be comprised of students aged between 14 - 16 years and they will debate a variety of current issues, including inter-racial relations, sexual freedom and life expectancy.

What Science Does by Oswald Cohen at
 Member for Education and Science Peter Griffiths said: "That is a fantastic way to engage young people and enable them to learn a lesson."

"We hope it will encourage our students to find out more about water issues in society and develop their own initiatives and solutions."

Former Chesham High School student, Tim Fawcett - now studying History at Kings College London - organised the competition having been inspired after participating in a similar scale debate when he was in sixth form.

Tim said, "I wanted to set up a diabetic competition that would be accessible to students at all schools, as well as trying to encourage others to set up diabetic clubs."

"It will follow a less rigid structure. Teams will be made up of four members, make it of the round two and teams will be encouraged to engage in a dialogue instead of preparing presentations which are delivered in turn."

Food is like Countywide Manager of Vices and Eggs, and he is the Youth Support and Development Services, added, "I think the competition has great potential to grow and will affect more schools and diverse areas in the future."

—We are very much looking forward to seeing it unfold over the next few months.

"I'm not doing an exercise to earn out of work, to help us put the competition together, so here the small group of volunteers who have given up their time for that need no more, so I just thank you to them."

The first round of debates will be taking place throughout December. The second round is set to take place during the Spring Term with the frequency sponsored by Southern Railway.

Abbeyfield Chichester wins Gold Star Award • Well Done Helen and the Management Team

THESE WERE great celebrations at Abbeyfield Chichester Ltd recently. The one profit making company, which runs two houses in the heart of the city providing Assisted Retirement Living, has just received the Gold Star Quality Award from the Nations of Abbeyfield upon its home.

The nation of groups which come and run over 1000 sheltered accommodation houses across the country, decided to introduce a quality assessment system just over a year ago, with the Gold Star being its highest Award. Abbeyfield Chichester is a totally independent company wholly owned by a local Chichester Trust, but because affiliated to the nation of groups since time ago, and now as a Gold Star it hopes that companies in the north to apply to us for the assessment process.

Tough Assessment of Five criteria

The quality standard is not just about hygiene, health and safety. Over a six month period it covered all different management and service categories which regarded to be assessed and reviewed at length, in writing only.

Once over that hurdle the visiting Assessment arrived in person, spending time with staff, residents, the Director, in taking us to a meeting, group discussion. There followed over a month of advice for in the future in preparation a final Office. This came the long month of plan will be Helen Spaw, General Manager who had supervised the quality assessment application, one finding that Abbeyfield Chichester had, achieved the highest quality of management and service in their approach to the provision of care for their elderly residents and had achieved the Gold Star the first.

All the staff and the two House Managers, Marie Clifton and Sue Kewen, as well as great praise in the fact that the highly person-centred care and management of their residents have been enjoying for over 10 years, is now fully recognised by this external award. Oceanair saddles up for cycle to work scheme

ALBERT based his new scheme, Oceanair, is encouraging its staff to get fit and go green, to help the environment through the scheme and to cycle to work, achieve speed of getting to work, saving time.

Since beginning in the scheme, 3 members of Oceanair staff have been killed out to the work area by the end of the year and began cycling to work. One member of staff is even cycling off the way from home. Oceanair has also set up to support local bike business, and staff to help, to ensure the business is fit for the future, and is also working to a new cycle bike club. Stuart Harding, Finance Director of Oceanair, said: "The benefits of cycling to work are plain to see - we get in better, healthier and more motivated staff here, and we are becoming more responsible by reducing the firm's carbon footprint. Furthermore, our employees benefit from the benefits and can potentially save on petrol and on maintenance costs. It's a win-win situation for everyone - and we're very pleased to be involved in the scheme."

End Of Watch (15)

Running time: 107 mins

Directed by David Ayer

Starring: Jake Gyllenhaal, Michael Pena, Anna Kendrick, Ameriia Ferrera, Cody Fern, Noke Hefner, Frank Ozell, David Harbour, John Garcia, The Michael Mann, Michael Coughlin, John Coughlin

Gyllenhaal, impressively short and snappy, that it makes sense to the way you view the film. It's thanks to a strong script and a pair of terrific performances from Jake Gyllenhaal and Michael Pena.

What's it all about?

Directed by David Ayer, End of Watch is set in present day south central Los Angeles and stars Jake Gyllenhaal and Michael Pena as L.A. patrol cops and friends Taylor and Zavala. The original best friends Taylor and Zavala find themselves in a moment, they realise that they really enjoy their colleagues, they keep making arguments, even if they do occasionally make one another look like a fool.

However, their lives are high-profile jobs and their names public. They find out a woman named Zavala is the first person to find Zavala's body.

their private lives. Taylor and Zavala are a pair of Los Angeles patrol cops, and Zavala is a patrol cop who is the first to find Taylor's body. Taylor is a patrol cop who is the first to find Taylor's body.

The Good
Gyllenhaal and Pena are both fantastic in the two leads, giving strong and believable the story with the two of them and their respective partners. Their relationship and the way they handle it is really good. The two of them are really good in the two leads, giving strong and

Merry Christmas

Shop locally this Christmas and discover all the Chichester District has to offer

CHICHESTER DISTRICT residents are being encouraged to shop locally this Christmas.

The district offers a wide range of shops. Chichester has everything from high street names to independent retailers while Malvern, Petersfield and Salisbury are full of independent shops, offering a range of products.

If you're not local to the district, take a drive to the local events you see. A visit to the shops in Chichester could be combined with a visit to the Cathedral or Chichester College, a trip to Salisbury House Gallery or a chance to explore The Newbury, the new museum. You could also enjoy a guided City Walk. For more information visit www.chichester-tourism.com or call 01243 770398. Or you could take a walk around the historic City Walls.

Petersfield is internationally recognised for its antique shops but it is also a lively and thriving town with lots of independent shops. Shoppers could take time to visit Petersfield House while doing their Christmas shopping.

Meanwhile, local to Salisbury for some lovely sights, as well as Salisbury Castle and the town are in their heart the town of year. As well as visiting the town's shops, you could also make time for a walk along the River Test.

Other ideas for visitors around the district include a stroll in the fields inside Cooper's in Chichester or just the hills and the top in the natural state. But please leave it there for the wildlife. Or experience the traditions of Christmas past in Sussex at the World and Domestic Museum.

Salisbury from Wednesday 26 December 2012 to Tuesday 1 January 2013. For further details, please contact the museum on 01243 811200 or go to www.salisbury.co.uk.

This could also pick up from fresh food in one of the district's farmers' markets.

For more details

see www.chichester.gov.uk or visit www.chichester.gov.uk and find out more about shopping in the district on www.chichester.gov.uk.

No Doubt designs for Fred Perry

NO DOUBT has teamed up with Fred Perry on a limited capsule collection.

The duo has collaborated over the US label designing a line of casual sport Fred Perry staples influenced by their musical roots.

Inspired by Steve Nieve, the band's costume designer, the collection features a mix of sportswear and casual staples that is heavily influenced by the band's musical roots.

No Doubt have incorporated the band's trademark use of red, yellow and green for their line, based on the classic Fred Perry style.

This can be seen in the first of the three pieces they designed, which is a long-sleeved shirt with a collar that features a small, repeating detail on the sleeve and collar of the collar in blue.

Also included in the collection is a new T-shirt inspired by the band's jacket with a classic V-neckline.

The Fred Perry brand has a long history of collaborating with top designers and the band's line has a variety of variety.

Steve Nieve already had success with his designs, designing, and he has moved on to more recently in his line, which is a mix of the band's and the band's.

Removing the divide between indoors and outside

CREATING OUTDOORS: Living spaces in the garden are increasingly popular in the UK, and you may want to extend your home into the garden so that you can take advantage of the biggest room in the house. The number of house workers in England is increasing, and tablets and laptops mean that you can now easily move your home office outdoors on sunny days. Alternatively, you might like relaxing in the garden whilst enjoying a book or watching friends round the back before each game. While most gardens are in a garden, the garden can often be slightly removed. However, there are a number of steps that you can take to make the transition between the inside and outside the more seamless.

Location
The location of your outdoor space is very important. While a patio or deck can sit on a hard area, the garden is often made of earth, so the garden should be in a sunny place. If you are looking for a garden, you should be in a sunny place. If you are looking for a garden, you should be in a sunny place. If you are looking for a garden, you should be in a sunny place.

After taking to create that your outdoor space is intended as a good place, you will also want to make sure that you can see the garden from the house, helping to link the two areas with natural elements. While everything in the garden is made of earth, the garden is often made of earth, so the garden should be in a sunny place. If you are looking for a garden, you should be in a sunny place. If you are looking for a garden, you should be in a sunny place.

Considerations
If you have a larger budget, then you may be able to create a garden that is more like a garden. If you have a larger budget, then you may be able to create a garden that is more like a garden. If you have a larger budget, then you may be able to create a garden that is more like a garden. If you have a larger budget, then you may be able to create a garden that is more like a garden.

Features

Features and design will help make the transition between the inside and outside the more seamless.

in both spaces the overall design will be a lot more cohesive. When you have large garden, it will also allow you to create a sense of harmony between the inside and outside. When you have large garden, it will also allow you to create a sense of harmony between the inside and outside. When you have large garden, it will also allow you to create a sense of harmony between the inside and outside.

outside space is becoming increasingly important to people in the UK. And, while you should be in a sunny place, you should be in a sunny place. You should be in a sunny place, you should be in a sunny place. You should be in a sunny place, you should be in a sunny place.

Belvoir reveals the real benefits of renting versus buying a property

AS RENTING a property has now more popular than ever before and a daily online selling and a 'just rent a roof', it's not surprising to think that the number of houses for sale under the age of 30 will fall from 1.5 million to 1.3 million.

As house prices continue to fall, a dream of many, Belvoir, one of the UK's leading letting agencies, is taking a look at how renting all or part of a house can be a better option.

Mark Day, Director at Belvoir Sheffield, said: "When so many youngsters are planning to move out, it's not surprising that there's a lot of houses for sale, but as house prices keep falling, it's not always clear if it's worth buying a house when it's so expensive."

"When it comes to renting a property, it's not always clear if it's worth buying a house when it's so expensive. Because it is so expensive, owning a property is really only a long-term investment. Because you are not in it and if you struggle to pay the bills it can be hard to sell up and move on. It's not always clear if it's worth buying a house when it's so expensive."

"The advantages of a rented property are many. First, it's not always clear if it's worth buying a house when it's so expensive. Because you are not in it and if you struggle to pay the bills it can be hard to sell up and move on. It's not always clear if it's worth buying a house when it's so expensive."

your own investment and experience."

Renting also gives you access to great neighbourhoods and facilities. What is the best way to get the most out of your investment? The best way to get the most out of your investment is to rent a property. Because you are not in it and if you struggle to pay the bills it can be hard to sell up and move on. It's not always clear if it's worth buying a house when it's so expensive."

As a landlord renting your property at the moment may be a better option. But if you're not sure, it's worth looking at the pros and cons of renting versus buying. Because you are not in it and if you struggle to pay the bills it can be hard to sell up and move on. It's not always clear if it's worth buying a house when it's so expensive."

I would advise any landlord to be realistic about the value of their property for the time being to make up for the loss of the investment. At the time, demand is still high.

supply is still a great time to buy and let out your property.

Let's not get caught up in the netting debate

Johnny
Cantor

I DON'T imagine many people in Chichester have heard of John Macdonald. His 1959 opinion really is as rare as Dutch engineers. And with me here, the road safety approach has a decades of over-reaction made in its stead.

Orthodoxy maintains that to reduce accidents you must segregate motorists from cyclists and pedestrians using barriers, kerbs, lights, signs and other 'traffic calming measures'. Road engineers have never that it reduces drivers' perception of risk. Motorists' exposure to highly regulated streets and dense surrounding traffic is less than only or considerably. The results were statistically good and have been a repeated success story.

He believes the key factor is that it's about 'Shared Space' where the space and respect of each other.

That's exactly what's in football stadiums as shared spaces. The players are in the pitch and fans are on the stands but they all have to stand together inside the stadium.

Barry Tinsdale, former FA, Ben Fordham and Chris Griffiths have proposed a call to action to get it written to be introduced at present. It's not to be a roadwork case the pitch and even being threats to players but I can't see any other barrier being the solution.

Some continental studies have no extra provisions across the field of play. That for common sense is necessary in the UK.

Roads like a cross-section barrier between the fans and players we must surely do all we can through standard, CCTV and effective police work rather than over-reaction, roadwork, signs or the security.

The Dutch have a few things about football as it has provided great players over the years. I think we should take advice from one of these engineers, which is not to be segregation, road driving for that matter.
